UndocuTransfer Info Sessions Series

This is a great opportunity for prospective transfer undocumented students to:

- Learn about services and support available to undocumented students at universities across California
- Hear directly from students about their experience at each university
- Get connected to Dream Centers and UndocuSupport Program representatives before transferring
- Discover resources and opportunities at each campus, including legal services, mental health services, job/internship opportunities, and more.
- Become informed about "next steps" for financial aid, admissions, and residency to ensure a smooth transfer transition
- Explore university options whether applying for admissions this year or still having more time to decide before applying to transfer

The target audience for these sessions is undocumented community college students, but faculty and staff, as well as HS students, are welcome.

NU continues to offer the Associate Degree for Transfer (ADT) Scholarship, which is designed to support students in transitioning smoothly to National University and completing their bachelor's degree in a short amount of time.

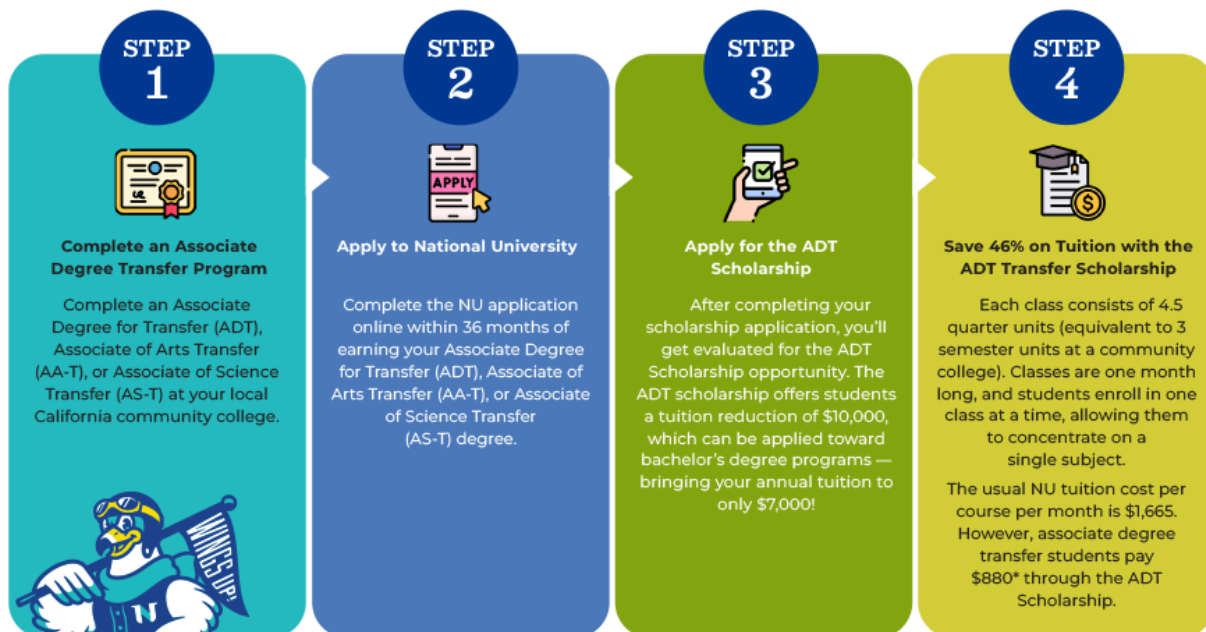

The diverse program pathways, which are market-relevant, further enhance this scholarship's potential to make a significant difference in their educational journey.

CC students are welcome to schedule an appointment with Monir Masoud, Director of Community College Pathways, at their convenience by visiting his National University Linktree page.

- California Community College Transfer Students who have recently earned their Associates Degree for Transfer (ADT) or a transferable associate degree (Associate degrees that use the CSU Breadth or IGETC patterns as general education for degree completion) within 12 months of applying to NU are eligible for the ADT transfer scholarship pricing of $880 per course (max 20 courses). Additional coursework beyond the 90 quarter units may be required for AA and AS transferred degrees.

Soar in to NU With the ADT Scholarship

NU has partnered with 116 community colleges in California to establish degree articulation agreements. These agreements are designed to streamline the transfer process, making it smoother and more seamless for you to transition to National University and continue your educational journey.

STEP
1

Complete an Associate Degree Transfer Program

Complete an Associate Degree for Transfer (ADT), Associate of Arts Transfer (AA-T), or Associate of Science Transfer (AS-T) at your local California community college.

2

Apply to National University

Complete the NU application online within 36 months of earning your Associate Degree for Transfer (ADT), Associate of Arts Transfer (AA-T), or Associate of Science Transfer (AS-T) degree.

3

Apply for the ADT Scholarship

After completing your scholarship application, you'll get evaluated for the ADT Scholarship opportunity. The ADT scholarship offers students a tuition reduction of $10,000, which can be applied toward bachelor's degree programs — bringing your annual tuition to only $7,000!

4

Save 46% on Tuition with the ADT Transfer Scholarship

Each class consists of 4.5 quarter units (equivalent to 3 semester units at a community college). Classes are one month long, and students enroll in one class at a time, allowing them to concentrate on a single subject.

The usual NU tuition cost per course per month is $1,665. However, associate degree transfer students pay $880* through the ADT Scholarship.

Transferring with an ADT from a Community College:

The Fresno Pacific University degrees listed have been formally approved as "similar" to the corresponding Associate Degrees for Transfer (ADT). This means that the FPU Program Directors for a "similar" FPU major have reviewed the relevant ADT and determined that a student who earns that ADT can complete the Fresno Pacific University degree in 68 units or less. For information regarding the completion of an FPU bachelor's degree visit our ADT Transfer Pathway page.
